GEN. BOYNTON, the Commercial Gazette's Washington correspondent, has been delving in the musty records of the war department since the Senate refused to confirm Halstead as Minister to Germany, and finds that Plumb, the Kansas exotic, who voted against the confirmation, was not only charged but convicted of conspiring to rob and robbing one Crenshaw, whom he had arrested while he was provost marshal in Kansas, on some trumped up charge. While in prison an agent of Plumb made him sign a bill of sale for 100 cattle and 33 hogs; sum named in the bill of never got a cent. He was also made to sign another bill of sale for 20 mu'es and 11 head of horses for the sum of $1,200, for which he never received a c nt or the promise of any. Th y then nale him sign a bill of sale for 58 mules and made him write an order to Baker in Clinton county, Mo., who had the mules in possession for the 58, all of which were taken and for none of which he ever received a cent. Plumb and his allies were tried by court marshal. He got off with being relieved of his post, while his dupes got 10 years in the penitentiary. A splendid specimen for a Senator is Plumb, but we suppose that the average of his constituency.

THE question of calling a constitutional convention is to be voted upon again at the August election. It carried at the last election under the methods prescribed by the Offutt bill, and if a favorable vote is given in August the next Legislature is required to pass a law calling for a convention, the delegates to which will be chosen at the August election next year. These must meet within three months after their appointment and perform the work for which they were selected. The instrument they popular vote and if adopted we shall have a new constitution.

RIOR JOURNAL's, in the mountains of Kentucky. I like Williamsburg for the kindness with which I was received and it is for that reason as well as perhaps a few others that I try to reciprocate by first-class literature. It was just six years ago that I first laid eyes on this place, which was then a ragged, dirty, settlement of 1,000 or 1,200 inhabitants and it looks almost a miracle to gaze on the city like appearance it now presents with a population nigh on to 3,000. From one window in my hotel I can see four handsome churches with steeples and cupolas towering as high as the chain of mountains which makes a beautiful background a short distance J. P. Burton, Clerk. beyond; from another window I look upon the Baptist College, an imposing three-story structure, in which 150 students are poring over their books, and still from another window (for this room is most excellently ventilated) I see the stately court-house and the gently flowing Cumberland, which nearly encircles the town, with inst a quarter of a mile mammoth saw an I planing mill, which ranks with the largest in the country There are besides these named many other important features which make Williamsburg a decidedly pleasant place, both from a social and business standpoint, but I will not mention them for fear that those who know nothing of the place might think I deal in flattery.

There are lawyers here from almost every section and they all seem to be doing well. I had the honor (?) to sit with 9 members of the bar at one meal and to room with 3. If I thought it a true maxim that evil communications corrupt good morals, I should certainly be uneasy about my own, for wherever the name "lawyer" is known, it is also known that there are two accomplishments pessessed by them, with, which they can double discount any set of individuals on earth.

The I. J. Man at Williamsburg.

The combination of mishaps which me from visiting this place as frequently of late as I would have desired, and it was quite a treat when I was told Tuesday morning by the unfortunate gentleman above referred to, that I might spend a couple of days with the people in this part of the State. I came to Williamsburg for more reasons than one. I knew that Common Pleas Court

I like Williamsburg for the kindness with which I was received and it is for that reason as well as perhaps a few others that I try to reciprocate by putting into the hands of her people first-class literature. It was just six years ago that I first laid eyes on this place, which was then a ragged, dirty settlement of 1,000 or 1,200 inhabitants with a population pigh on to 3,000. From one window in my hotel I can see four handsome churches with steeples and cupolas towering as high as the chain of mountains which makes a beautiful background a short distance J. P. Belmont Chief is a bay and weighs 1,100 pounds, toaled in 1888, bred by J. L. Cogar, Midway, Ky. Belmont Chief in appearance is very much like his sire. He troted a mile at Decatur, Mich., in 1888 in 2:31½. Considering the concentration of speedy blood, size, style, shape and trotting action. I have the utmost confidence in the results to be obtained by breeding to him. His first colts will be developed for speed, thus making an early showing of his excellent qualities and bring his colts into prominence.

Thermometers are liable to inaccuracies, even when most carefully constructed. The freezing point is liable to be temporarily depressed or elevated, a temporary fall occurring after the thermom ter has been subjected to great heat and a temporary elevation after it has been repeatedly cooled. There is also a permanent elevation, which may amount to two degrees, and which is caused by the atmospheric pressure on the bulb; therefore a thermometer tube after being filled should be allowed to remain for two or three years before graduation.-New York world.

SUPPLEMENT.

Finding Gut His Standing.

"Elmira!"

It was a young man of South Boston who spoke, his words fraught with meaning, and a look of terrible earnestness plastered on his brow. The maiden whom he thus addressed was seated on an elegant ottoman of raw silk and plush. It was the first time Gawge had called her by her first name and a blush of terra cotta red tore its way over her cheek. "Elmira," said the young man tenderly, "I have been calling, off and on, in this house for the last 11 years. May I hope that you no longer think of me as a stranger?" A tender light came into the young girl's eyes, but she said nothing.

"I do not think it is conceit when I say that you have led me to believe by your actions that I am not distasteful to you? Nay, even," and here his deep, manly voice took a tone that thrilled her to her loudly beating heart, "that you think well of me?"

The young girl lifted her statuesque head, and with a teardrop glinting and glistening on her long opalisque eyelids, replied: "Yes, Gawge!"

"Then, that's all right," said the young man briskly. "I want to marry your sister, so I thought I would see that I was all square with the family before I proposed!"-Boston Record.

How to MAKE A WILL .- A duty which every man owes to his family is the making of a will. An instrument of this kind can be drawn by any intelligent person and will be admitted to probate in all courts, providing the document is in writing, and signed at the end by the testator, or some person in his presence and by his direction, in the presence of two witnesses at least, who must subscribe and attest the will in his presence. The signature must be so placed at, after, following, under or beside or opposite the end of the will that it shall be apparent that the testator intended to give effect by the signature to the writing signed as his will. A provision of this kind will save annoyance and expense and prevent litigation after the demise of many fathers of families who had too much faith in the good nature of their offspring, forgetting the old saving that where money interests begin family interests end.

The United States Senate has divided itself into several committees of five, seven and nine for summer junketing purposes. Ten or twelve of these special committees have been authorized to investigate almost everything under the canopy. Their expenses, palace cars, hotel bills, clerks, secretaries, messengers and bootblacks are paid out of the contingent fund. This is the dignified way the Senate sponges on the Treasury. It no more resembles the Senate in the palmy days of its glory than a cocking man Booth's Hamlet. It is a corporation-ridden-and owned institution, and with the new States enter eight more corporation lawyers and attorneys .-Pittsburgh Post.

Seedy Looking Stranger (to proprietor of dime museum) -"I am the only man in the country that predicted Harrison's cabinet right. What am I worth to you per week?"

Proprietor-"You guessed it correctly, did you?"

Stranger-"Called the turn on it exactly two months ago. Here's the sheet of paper I wrote the names down on."

Proprietor (admiringly)-"I couldn't afford to give you what you are worth. But I have a brother who publishes a paper, and is looking for the right kind of a man to edit the circulation affidavits. Go and tell him your story .- Chicago Tribune.

On the 10th of March, 1888, A. J. D. Foster, of the Boyd's creek country, resolved to save every dime that came into his pocket for a year. On the 10th of this month Mr. Foster disgorged his dimes and the result was a surprise to himself-as it will be to everyone who ever tries the same plan. His savings weighed 43 pounds in dimes, and numbered 826 dimes, and amounted to $82.60. This is food for some solid reflection in what become of all the dimes and nickels which come in and go out of a man's pocket unsaved in the course of a year. Georgetown Times.

Corporal Tanner has neither the breadth of mind, the soundness of judgment nor the capacity for administration that the position demands. He has to commend him only his ardor as a grand army man, which he has long been eager to turn to political account, and his disposition to distribute the surplus in pensions and the public offices Howfunnyalinelookswithoutanyspaces! in political rewards.—New York Times. holds a pint.

At the funeral of her mother in New York, a little four-year-old toddled to the coffin and tip-toeing over it whispered, "Mamma, dere's lots o' nice people here, dit up and see 'em." No answer coming to her, she turned and said to her listeners, "My mamma is very sleepy and I know she's sorry not to see you all, but I'll tell her." Then wondering that they, too, made no answer, and alarmed by the tears she saw on every cheek, she ran to her father who clasped her in his arms.

Take two tumblers-one filled half full of salt water, and one filled half full of fresh water. Put a fresh egg in the tumbler of fresh water. It will sink to the bottom. Put it in the tumbler of salt water and it will float on top. Carefully pour the brine through a long funnel to the bottom of the tumbler containing the fresh water. The fresh water will rise to the top and the egg will lie directly in the middle of the glass, poised between the two.

Elder W. Loos tells the following: "Once upon a time a gentleman of another denomination introduced his (the pastor's) friend as follows: 'Let me introduce you to a reformed preacher,' whereupon Mr. Loos responded: 'You have doubtless heard of and probably met 'reformed drunkards,' 'reformed gamblers' and other reformed people, but doubtless you now see before you for the first time a 'reformed preacher.'"

The German Government recently sent a spy to this country to see how we stood to resist a probable war with it. On his return this conversation is alleged to have taken place: Bismarck-"Dot spy is no goot. I discharge him." Emperor-"Vat he do?" "He do nodding; he von lazy feller. Sanguine Democrats.

The Omaha Republican has been talking with our Samuel and prints the following:

Col. Sam Burdett has a story which he tells to illustrate the vitality of the democratic party. There was, according to the story, a certain county in California which contained at one time but three democrats. These were a ranchman of some prominence, a saloon-keeper and a drunken shoemaker. In spite of their poverty in point of numbers, this little band never failed to become enthusiastle, arrogant and finally offensive in each campaign, National, State or local. The always claimed everything up to the close of the polls on the day of the election. They would tan lat the polling booth and challenge every doubtful voter. They made frequent visits to the suloon, always returning with renewed ardor and enthusiasm. When the returns began to come in, showing that the county had gone overwhelmingly republican, this trio were in no sense depressed.

"Wait till you hear from the State, gentlemen," the ranchman would remark with an air of confidence that could not be assumed.

"Yes," the shoemaker would chime in, "wait till you hear the figures from 'Frisco city and the rest of the State."

"That'll be news you rads won't want to hear," the sulcon-keep r would add.

The State returns would show the usnal result; everything hopelessly repub lienn.

"Well, boys, you have beat us in the State," the ranchman would observe; "but, thank God! we have elected our President.

Then the shoemaker would confirm the grounds for the ranchman's thanksgiving by remarking:

"Yes, gentlemen, old Horatio Seymour has 'win' his race hands down. He has carried mighty nigh every Northern

"That there is a fact," would be the voice of the saloon-keeper, never failing his comrades

And, so the story went on; these men continued their hopes and their efforts, in spite of successive adverse results which would have destroyed ordinary people. The sho-maker died in a drunken fit. The saloon-keeper killed a man and was sentenced to the penitentiary. But the ranchman lived and preserved his freedom long enough to see his country give a democratic majority. In celebrating that event he was killed by a premature discharge of anvils.

W. P. WALTON.

THE Owensboro Messenger speaks of Gen. Bradley as an "inflated little toad." Look here, young man, you are trespassing on our individual prerogative. We have a little fun out of Gen. Bradley, occasionally, but we allow no other man to speak either disparagingly or disrespectfully of him. Call us anything you wish, but unless you would be knocked into the midale of next week, keep a civil tongue in your head when speaking of our friend and fellow citizen, the great and only Wm. O'Connell Bradley.

REFERRING to our protest against the making of governors out of any more doctors, the Owensboro Messenger agrees with us that Blackburn was a colossal failure, but adds: "Dr. Rodman was not suggested as governor because of his ment as a physician, but because he has shown himself to be a fine business man-an executive officer and an economist of rare ability. There is no probability of Dr. Rodman becoming a candidate, but the truth must prevail.

TANNER, who imagined he had the country and its treasury in a sling and was the great and only high cock-a-lorem of the pension office, has been given a back set by Secretary Noble, who reminds kim that he is running the Interior Department and that all orders and appointmentsmust be approved by him. This was called fourth by Tanner discharging four heads of departments and threatening to fire the last democrat.

An Ohio poultry raiser has made a enrious discovery. He says that if you go out to feed a flock of chickens, and will cause them to wait, they will invariably, as they crowd about you, begin a circuit around you from right to left in front and continue this revolution as long as you stand there. No amount of interruption or maneuvering can confuse them or compel them to take the contrary direction at any time.

Among the many interesting letters which Dr. R. Ryland, of Lexington, received on his 84th birthday, 14th, was one from his oldest pupil who is now in his 85th year, and one from his youngest pupil who is in his third year, his baby grandson, to whom the venerable doctor is teaching the alphabet. From Boston to Santa Fe, from Virginia to Maine manifested their affection in the most gratifying manner.

STANFORD AND LINCOLN COUNTY.

Stanford, the county seat of Lincoln county is situated on the Knoxville Division of the Louisville and Nashville R. R., 103 miles from Louisville and Is the terminous of the Kentucky Central, 128 miles from Cincinnati. It has a population of about 2,500, in addition to a railroad suburb ot 500, where the L. & N. has its engine house and repair shops. The surrounding country is rich and beautiful, its hills and valleys being covered with a luxuriant growth of blue-grass. A flourishing female college, a good male seminary, a well kept public school, all in their own buildings, furnish excellent school facilities. It has two National Banks, with a combined capital of $450,000; a flourishing roller mill, a planing mill, seven churches, a large new opera house, three hotels, seven grocery and five dry goods stores, two clothing three drug and two furniture and undertakers' stores, 2 saddleries and sundry other smaller establishments. The need of the town is manufactories, nearly any kind of which would flourish. especially a furniture factory, its railroad facilities and its convenience to excellent lumber being unsurpassed. Many more dwelling houses are needed and the opening up of the Miller Extension gives plenty of lots for their erection.

Lincoln is one of the oldest as it is one of the best counties in the State. A good portion of its land is the famons bine-grass; the rest is high timbered land, which on being cleared and cultivated yields a good return of any kind of crop. It is especially adapted to fruit growing and grape culture and the German and Swiss Colonies, to the number of several hundred persons, are making this portion of the county bloom with beauty. The population of Lincoln is fully 20,000 and it is being constantly increased by immigration and by others seeking homes at once desirable and cheap. Two railroads, the Cincinnati Southern and the Louisville and Nashville, traverse the county from North to South and from Eaststo West, while the Kentucky Central and the Green River railroads run e

A bullet penetrated the lungs of Chas. L. Dunlap during the battle of Antietam September 17, 1862, while he was fighting in the ranks of the Fifth Maine. Since that eventful day Mr. Dunlap, who is a boss in the quarries at Rockport, Mass., has coughed almost unceasingly. At one time he coughed up a fragment of his woolen shirt-a piece about as large as a dime-which had been pushed into his lung by the ball when it tore its way into his chest. About a year afterward two splinters of his broken rib came up, and a few days ago he cured himself of his cough by bring to the surface another bit of bone and a tiny spherule of lead that had been chipped off the bullet by the sharp edge of the fractured rib. It had been rounded and smoothed during the 24 years that had elapsed since its lodgment. Mr. Dunlap is quite proud of his little museum.

Justice Fuller Starts a Social Reform.

The families of Chief Justice Fuller and Senator Evarts are very thick. It has brought about a remarkable reform in certain social customs. The celebrated writer on etiquette, Mrs. Pussie Sherwood, declares with emphasis that, in making calls, cards should be left for every member of the family. The strict adherence to this rule when the seven Evarts girls went over to call on the Fullers, caused them to leave cards for themselves, papa and mamma Evarts, for papa and mamma Fuller and the eight Fuller girls-that is:

7 plus 2x2 plus 8-90.

Each time they made a call they had to leave 90 cards on the hall table, and when the Fuller girls went over to see the Evarts family they had to leave 90 cards to do the thing in proper shape.

Now these girls would die, each and every one of them, rather than do a single thing which was not chic and recherche and au fait and en regle and cafe an lait, especially the Fuller girls, and as they ran back and forth to see each other in their innocent, girlish way not less than four times a day, the equation stood at the end of the month:

90x2x4x30=21,900.

The Senator and the Justice had a long confidential talk, and parted with a cordial grasp of the hand. The next day a furniture van, heavily laden, went from the Evarts house to the Fuller house, and a big two-horse dray, loaded to the scuppers toiled from the Justice's to the Senator's. The girls were exchanging cards. Now when they make calls on each other they just hang on the newell post and holler up stairs.-Washington Post.

Fifty years ago the daughter of James Martin, a well-to-do farmer, purchased an expensive dress against his wishes, and she sent him a comic valentine representing a miser. He never spoke to her since. Last week he died and left $15,000 to each of his children but this daughter, for whom he left a sealed envelope, which, when opened had her old valentine inside.

In the valley of Cashmere polyandry is a frequent phenomenon, one woman being often permitted to marry 7 simultaneous husbands. In a country of that sort a Chicago divorce lawyer might make a a fortune out of a single family.

The peculiar flavor of a Havana cigar was supposed to be influenced by the climate of the island, but it has lately been discovered that it was always imparted by drugs.

It is hard enough, anyway, for a bach-elor to hold a baby, but it is simple tor-ture when it is the baby of the girl who jilted him heartlessly only three years before.

STOLEN!

On Sunday night, December 30th, in the town of Stanford, Ky., a BLACK HÖRSE, about 15½ hands high, 5 years old, both hind feet white, small star in the forehead and snip on nose. He carries his tail, which is very heavy, a little one sided. He was hitched to a side-bar buggy, comparatively new, with blue cloth linings. Besides the State reward of $50, I will give $25 for the recovery of the horse, buggy and thief.
